

World Speed Driver Taylor Hacquard Featured on Motorsport.com

19 year old journalist Tony DiZinno pens second World Speed driver feature

August 1, 2008
Sonoma, CA

This week Motorsport.com published an interview with World Speed Motorsports driver Taylor Hacquard. Taylor who is currently competing in the Star Mazda Series Championship was interviewed for the Who's Who section of the popular racing website.

The story was penned by 19 year old journalist Tony DiZinno. Tony has been on staff with Motorsport.com since February, 2006. The young writer, at the age of 16, won the Chris Economaki Junior Journalism Award. His reward was a trip to Indianapolis for the U.S. Grand Prix. In 2006 Tony wrote a feature article about Ace Carrio World Speed's 2006 championship winning driver.

Tony has written many articles for Motorsport.com for both the News and Magazine Channels covering races, teleconferences and special interviews. The teenager, who recently turned 19, gives a fresh perspective in the world of motorsports. Tony just finished his first year at Marquette University, and currently lives in Milwaukee, WI.

Motorsport.com features up-to-the-minute racing news coverage, with schedules, statistics, forums, features, and photos. Motorsport.com is headquartered in Tallahassee, Florida with locations and staff located in six countries and three continents around the world.

To read the feature story visit the Who's Who pages at Motorsport.com
<http://motorsport.com/magazine/feature.asp?C=WhosWho&D=2008-07-22>

For more info on World Speed Motorsports:
www.worldspeed.com

For more info on Taylor Hacquard:
www.TaylorHacquard.com