

Jorge Goncalvez Wins at PIR and Leads the Formula Mazda Winter Series
 14 car field decimated by newcomer to Phoenix International Raceway

December 15th
 Phoenix, AZ

Earlier this month the Formula Mazda Winter Series visited Phoenix International Raceway for the second weekend of the series. 14 cars were in the SCCA group including some very quick Formula Atlantic and F1000 cars.

The fast club racers were no match for the pro level Venezuelan. Goncalvez diced his way through the field both days and showed the locals the fast way around the track. "It was amazing," stated series official Ben Hetteema. "I wasn't surprised when he lapped most of the field as I've seen Jorge on track before. I was really impressed when he lapped many of the competitors twice! It reminded me of when Paul Tracy raced for Penske and lapped the entire field here at Phoenix in only his first season in IndyCar."

Goncalvez is now the points leader for the Formula Mazda Winter series Pro Formula Mazda class. The final race weekend of the series is a double header at Infineon Raceway February 27th-28th.
