Rookie Bruno Palli to Test Indy Lights Car

Brownsburg, IN (August 20, 2012) – Juncos Racing driver Bruno Palli running in his rookie season for the 2012 Star Mazda Championship presented by Goodyear will have his first run in an Indy Lights car tomorrow at Putnam Park Raceway located in Indiana.

Rookie Palli, 21, currently drives the #15 Team Viso Venezuela/Juncos Racing car is looking to move to the next level in the Road to Indy Program from the Star Mazda series into the Firestone Indy Lights series. IZOD INDYCAR driver E.J. Viso has played a big role in Palli's racing career by supporting him from karting at a young age to advancing him into the Star Mazda series this year. Palli currently stands 15th in the Star Mazda Championship points.

"I'm really excited about testing the Indy Lights car tomorrow," said Palli. "I know the car will be different with more horse power, but I have run at Putnam many times and feel comfortable with the track. I know that the team will help me a lot with all of the details of the car. The objective of tomorrow will be to gain more experience and miles in my racing career."

Ricardo Juncos, Team Owner, has built his team from driver development through karting, Star Mazda, and this year he added the Firestone Indy Lights series to his team. Juncos looks forward to developing another Juncos driver into the next level.

"Driver development has been the key to my team progressing from karting to the American open wheel series in Star Mazda and Indy Lights," said Juncos. "We have helped develop many drivers throughout the years and with this we have been able to move up as a team. Bruno will be the second Juncos driver to test in an Indy Lights car, we ran J.V. Horto at the beginning of the season who was a previous Juncos Racing Star Mazda driver. I'm thrilled that Bruno will have the chance tomorrow to step up into another car and I am confident he will have a smooth adjustment."
